- Buffalo Pen - Shoal Creek Bison
- Hughes Cabin - 1825 - The Daniel G. Hughes Cabin was built in 1825. It was found inside a large farmhouse on the site of Happy Rock Park in Gladstone, Missouri.
- Grist Mill - 1824 - The only structure built on site and is a replication of an 1824 mill built by Humphrey Smith along the Platte River near the town of Smithville, Missouri, in Clay County.
- City Hall and Jail - 1868 - Built in Missouri City, Missouri, in 1868 and used until 1915. Collapsed and in ruins, it was gifted to Shoal Creek in 1977 where it was reconstructed.
- Shields Mercantile - 1856 - Originally Built in the 1850's in Parkville, Missouri, as the home of the first mayor of Parkville, James Arnold. It is currently used as a mercantile store with living quarters for the storekeeper and family.
- Crossroads Inn - 1835 - Originally a private home constructed in the 1830's by the John W. Reynolds family of Clay County.
- Restrooms - Originally a log-cabin found inside a small house located on the south side of Barry Road in Barry, Missouri. The cabin was discovered when the street was widened. It is believed to have been a community store used by settlers going west.
- Carpenter Shop - (Fox) - 1830 - Found on KCI airport property enclosed in a metal barn. Originally a single dog-trot cabin built by the James Fox family, circa 1830's, in Platte County. When the barn was dismantled, the backs of the cabins had deteriorated so much that only one cabin could be constructed.

- Mt. Ararat Baptist Church - 1884 - Built in 1884 near Fayette, Missouri, and used until 1985 when it was moved to Shoal Creek. It stands as a proud monument to those early settlers of Howard County.
- Cedars - (Arnold Home) - 1830 - Built in 1830 by Garrard Arnold and known as "The Cedars" because of the beautiful cedars that grew near the house. Moved to Shoal Creek in 1976 from Claycomo, Missouri. It is log underneath clapboard siding. Look near the outside chimney toward the back of the house to see the original logs.
- Blacksmith - Built in the 1800's, this barn originally stood on the Sam Ray Farm located next to Hodge Park. It is currently used as a blacksmith barn with a large, centrally located brick forge.
- Eldorado School - 1880 - Built in 1880 by Peter G. Peterson and originally located near the town of Tracy in Platte County, Missouri. Used until 1952 when small rural schools were closed.
- Doctor's Office - Originally the home of Isaac Neff and constructed sometime prior to 1855 near the community of Roosterville in Clay County, Missouri. It is currently being used as a doctor's office and home with a medicinal garden.
- Western Farm - (Thornton Mansion) - 1829 -- Original home of one of Clay County's early families. Colonel John Thornton built the home in 1829.
- Stribling Cabin - Built in 1835 by William Stribling on the bank of the Fishing River in Clay County and moved to its present location in 1976.

Established in 1975 Shoal Creek Living History Museum is a group of historic Buildings of nineteenth century Missouri and is dedicated to the preservation and interpretation of Missouri's early History and architecture.
